Question 51-55 are based on the following passage :

China has the largest population in the world . Though we have made great achievements in economic development ,huge population has wiped out the material benefits we have gained. Therefore , it has been quite necessary for China to implement family planning policy ,After more than 30 years efforts ,we have brought down the growth rate of population . But does it mean that single-child policy is the the best policy forever? The answer is negative . The reasons are as follow:

Firstly , single-child policy is not effective in the countryside and has the risk of quality . More and more couples in large modern cities quit the idea of raising a child mainly due to the pressure from life .They adopt childless policy which results in the negative increase of population in such cities as Shanghai and Beijing . And at the same time , some people from rural areas try to escape from family planning policy and have more children by using any means , which will lead to the decrease of population quality .

Secondly , it has caused other problems concerning the quality of children . Most children nowadays are treasured as the apple in their parents' eye . Parents extend excessive care and love to them . Children under such circumstances are likely to become selfish, arrogant and spoilt. They have poor sense of independence. This is harmful to the development of children's character and personality.

Finally, it increases the burden of young in taking care of their aging parents. Most young couples have to take care of four old persons, including parents and parents-in-law. Meanwhile, it adds to the seriousness of aging problems,Being rather busy with their work,most of the young people do not have enough time and energy to take of their old parents.

Question 56-60 are based on the passage :

Ernest Hemingway (1899-1961), an American novelist and short-story writer, was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1954. His adventuresome life and four marriages were widely publicized. In 1925, his first important book, a collection of stories called In Our Time, was published. The following year he published The Sun Also Rises, the novel with which he scored his first solid success. His position as a master of short fiction was advanced by Men Without Women, which included the story Hills Like White Elephants, and was confirmed by winner Take Nothing, which included A Clean, Well-Lighted Place. At least in the public view, however, the novel A Farewell to Arms, with its powerful fusion (结合) of love story and war story, overshadowed both.

Acting again as a correspondent, Hemingway made four trips to Spain. The harvest of his considerable experience in Spain was the novel For Whom the Bell Tolls, the best seller of all his books.

After seeing action in World War II, Hemingway returned to his home in Cuba. In 1953, he received the Pulitzer Prize in fiction for his short novel The Old Man and the Sea.

In 1960, Fidel Castro's revolution drove Hemingway from Cuba. Anxious and depressed, he eventually took his own life leaving behind many manuscripts.
